

Are you going through a NUDE BODY SCANNER Today?

---

The TSA now randomly requires many passengers at this airport to go through devices that allow them to see you naked using x-rays or sound waves. These devices may expose you to harmful radiation, in addition to subjecting you to a virtual strip search by the federal government without reasonable suspicion or probable cause.

---

Travellers are permitted to “opt out” of nude body scanners, though you, along with anyone who “fails” the scanner (which is as easy as leaving a credit card in your pocket), will be subjected by the TSA to an invasive pat-down which will involve touching your genitals, buttocks, and breasts.

“...or would you prefer we touch your genitals?”

---

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO HELP? Glad you asked. First, always “opt-out.” Next, tell any TSA agent touching your body that you do not consent to having your genitals touched. If they touch anyway, call the police. Last, write to your legislators, tell your friends, and make it known that you don’t support having you, your kids, your husband/wife, or anyone else photographed or molested as a condition of flying. For more information, see:

FlyerTalk Travel Safety/Security Forum
<http://www.flyertalk.com/forum/travel-safety-security-222/>

TSA Out of Our Pants Lawsuit
<http://tsaoutofourpants.wordpress.com/>

We Won't Fly
<http://wewontfly.com/>

This page is not endorsed by any of the above organizations, does not constitute legal advice, and is the free speech of the individual distributing it.